

The 2013 Wilderness Writing Award

The winner will be announced at WILD10
this October
in Salamanca, Spain

Call for Nominations

- International League of Conservation Writers may nominate candidates.
- See Nomination Guidelines on page 3
- Deadline for nominations is August 1, 2013

The 2013 Wilderness Writing Award

Presented by

The WILD Foundation, Fulcrum Publishing, and the International League of Conservation Writers

The Wilderness Writing Award for lifetime achievement is in recognition of a living writer's published body of work relating to meaningful and significant writing on wild nature, the environment, or the land. Published writers from anywhere in the world are eligible. Nominations are to be in English, but the body of work does not need to be in English. Members of the International League of Conservation Writers are eligible to nominate candidates. This occasional award, a collaborative project between The WILD Foundation, Fulcrum Publishing, and the International League of Conservation Writers, was launched at the 8th World Wilderness Congress in Anchorage, Alaska (2005).

Deadline is August 1st, 2013. Please see Nomination Guidelines on page 3.

*Writers may never know what impact their words
will make on those of their own time or on future generations*

Who will be next?

The 2013
Wilderness
Writing Award will be announced at WILD10 in Salamanca, Spain
this October!
Call for Nominations

Members of the International League of Conservation Writers may nominate candidates for the Wilderness Writing Award.

Send your nominations in English, by August 1st to:
Patty Maher
patty@fulcrumbooks.com

Previous Wilderness Writing Award Winners

2005 – John Haines | Fairbanks, Alaska

Former poet laureate of Alaska, Haines moved to Alaska in 1947 and homesteaded at Richardson. He learned to live off the land and become one of America's leading poets. He is author of such outstanding works as The Owl in the Mask of the Dreamer (1993); The Stars, the Snow, the Fire: Twenty-five Years in the Northern Wilderness (1989); and many more. Through his poetry and essays, he has contributed greatly to our appreciation of the natural world.

2007 – Bittu Sahgal | Mumbai, India

Sahgal is founder and president of Sanctuary Asia, India's premier wildlife and ecology magazine. In 2000 he founded the Kids for Tigers program that reaches a million children annually in bringing awareness and making them partners in saving the tiger by protecting its forests. Sahgal is a tireless, life-long advocate for respecting and protecting wild nature and right human relations as well as being a superb writer and communicator.

2009 – Ian McCallum | Cape Town, South Africa

Dr. McCallum is a medical doctor, Jungian psychologist, wilderness guide, founder of the Wilderness Leadership School in the Cape of Good Hope, South Africa, and director of the Wilderness Foundation Africa. He is the author of Thorns to Kilimanjaro, Ecological Intelligence: Rediscovering Ourselves in Nature, and a poetry collection Wild Gifts. He was presented the award during the WILD9 (9th World Wilderness Congress) in Merida, Mexico.

2011 – Michael Frome | Bellingham, Washington

A passionate protector of America's National Parks and a prolific conservation writer, Frome has written nearly 20 books and several magazine columns and articles. His books include Strangers in High Places: The Story of the Great Smoky Mountains, Regreening the National Parks, Rebel on the Road: And Why I was Never Neutral, and Green Ink. The University of Idaho established the Michael Frome Scholarship for excellence in conservation writing.

NOMINATION GUIDELINES

The 2013 Wilderness Writing Award for Lifetime Achievement

1. Nominations must be made by members of the International League of Conservation Writers.
2. No self-nominations. The candidate must be someone other than yourself.
3. The candidate must be living.
4. The nominated writing is for a body of work.
5. Include the candidate's name, country.
6. Nominations must be made in English. Although the work does not need to be in English. If the work is not in English, please be very thorough in describing the writing or the body of non-English work in your nomination paragraph(s).
7. Submit a descriptive paragraph explaining why this body of work should be considered for the Wilderness Writing Award. Be sure to state how this work helped to raise awareness for wilderness and/or its protection, or how the body of work increased the reader's appreciation for the natural world. Or, how this body of work changed your perception of wilderness. If possible, but not required, include a photo of the writer.
8. Email the nomination to: patty@fulcrumbooks.com. Or, mail to: Fulcrum Publishing, attn: Patty, 4690 Table Mountain Drive #100, Golden, Colorado 80403 USA.
9. Deadline for nominations is August 1, 2013.

Be Sure To:

Read the Guidelines to the left.

Include: Name, Where (the country of the candidate you are nominating is from or presently lives, and describe the body of work.

Include a descriptive paragraph describing your candidate's body of work, and why you are nominating them.

The candidate must be living.

Email your nomination and information to: patty@fulcrumbooks.com; or, mail to: Fulcrum Publishing, attn: Patty, 4690 Table Mountain Drive, #100, Golden, Colorado 80403 USA.

Deadline is August 1, 2013

The 2013 Wilderness Writing Award winner will be announced at WILD10 in Salamanca, Spain this October. The winner will be notified in advance.